THE SENATE BILL

It is unfortunate that the Senate Price Control bill yielded to certain special interests. Amendments made special concessions on: meat, poultry, cigarettes, gasoline, dairy products, textiles, etc. Experience should have shown the Senate that our national economy is interwoven and that what concerns one concerns all. In wages, for example, you cannot raise pay for one class of workers without all other classes insisting on as much or more. When you start including amendments to favor any special interests, you are playing a dangerous game. The final bill should be up broad national policies, rather than say what should be done in regard to special products. You can plan elimination of all controls by a certain period and gradually liberalize controls as you near that period thus insuring orderly transition.

HOW EXPLAIN IT?

A reader told us the other day that he found it difficult to explain why the people of Virginia voted so overwhelmingly for President Roosevelt in all of his elections, yet voted overwhelmingly for the conservative Byrd organization in the state and local elections.

As we see it, there are two explanations:

1. Approximately twice as many Virginians vote in the presidential elections as in state and local elections. In 1940, Roosevelt received 230,961 votes in Virginia, Willkie 109,863. In the 1941 primary, Darden got 105,655, Page 19,526, and Cary 12,793. In the 1941 general election, Darden got 99,120, while the Republican Muse got 21,783. In 1942, Senator Glass was reelected to the Senate with a mere 79,421 votes. His opponent got only 5,690. In 1936, Roosevelt got 234,980. And in Congressional elections the vote is woefully small. In 1942, Congressman Drewry received a total of 4,457, with no opposition. The total vote cast for all Virginia Congressmen in 1942 was 90,067. In some states the many votes are cast in a single district. The conclusion is that all "liberals" just don't vote in local and state elections. Some believe they figure they have little chance to win, but more probably because because few candidates with popular appeal oppose the organization in local and state elections. Where a candidate with the popular appeal of Roosevelt is offering in local and state elections, the total vote would be much larger. Whether you are for or against "organization," it must be conceded that by and large it puts up good candidates in local and state elections.

2. Over and beyond the statistics of elections, we believe there is a tendency on the part of Virginians to be conservative in their local and state affairs, while leaning with favor on liberal policies on a national scale. Thus, many of Senator Byrd's most ardent followers were equally as enthusiastic in support of President Roosevelt. We have no objection to placing this newspaper in that group. Conservative practices appeal to us in the administration of local affairs, but we also believe that liberalism in Washington saved us from the two great crises of our generation, the depression and the late war. We see nothing inconsistent in this position, for we believe that the vast problems of social and economic security must be faced on a national scale and that the welfare of our people is best served if they are approached from the liberal point of view. And regardless of whether one is liberal or conservative, it is not practical to solve national problems on a local basis. For just one example, were every county in every state to try to pass its own wages and hours laws we would have the biggest imaginable conglomeration; best struggle on a worldwide national set-up. Perhaps we shall write again expanding our concept of this evident desire of Virginians that the Democrats in Virginia be conservative and at the same time that the national Democrats be liberal. We do not believe the position incongruous.

It has always been our view that it would be tragic were all the conservatives in one party and all the liberals in another. We are glad that both conservatives and liberals are outstanding in both of our great political parties. We do not want our government made up entirely of men like Josh W. Sayler, or entirely of men like Henry Wallace! Give us balance and poise.

THE FRUIT OF FREEDOM

Burlington (Vt.) Free Press

The fact tha under free institutions the people of the United States have achieved the highest standard of living found anywhere in the world seems to have confused many in this country into the belief hat freedom is a means to reach the goal of ease and comfort. But the fruit of freedom is no primarily a full stomach or radios, automobiles, nylon stockings, refrigerators, fur coats, and labor-saving devices. The fruit of freedom is a lifting of the human spirit above the creature comforts of life to a point where they become minor items in the journey of man through this world.

AUTO DEATH PROJECTIONS

Winchester Star

The behavior of motorists has enabled safety workers and police officials to place highway deaths in much the same classification as life insurance statistics. The insurance people have used the law of averages to establish life expectancy. The same thing is now possible with relation to motoring.

Prior to a holiday the persons most intimately connected with motoring can es imate with a fair degree of accuracy how many will be killed and injured. They can use previous experience as a rule to predict how many victims will be counted at the end of a particular me h. They know the most dangerous days of the week and the most critical hours.

They have taken the guess work out of their forecasts because, although they dislike to admit it, so little progress toward safety is being made that they can judge the future by examining the past.

The country is following the usual pattern. Highway fatalities are up 10 per cen this year. This enables states to predict how many will be killed during the remainder of this year. Their estimates would be wrong, of course, if motorists suddenly became contrary and refused to continue killing and being killed. They might drive safely until all sorts of weather and road conditions and thus cut the accident toll drastically.

The thing has gone beyond the control of enforcement officials. Improvement is largely up to those who operate the cars. They can increase their life expectancy if they will, or they can continue at the present level and prove that the forecasters are right.

"OPERATIONS CROSSROADS"

By Louis Spilman

(Special to Times-Virginian)

Oakland, Calif., June 12.- This morning we board the USS Appalachian; June 18 we are scheduled to arrive at Honolulu where we stay for two days to get our last touch of civilization un'il at least two tests of that fearful and mysterious atomic bomb are held at Bikini A oll in the Ratak Chain of the Marshall Islands.

It has been a great cross-country trip on the "Crossroads Special" by Pennsylvania Railway from Washington through Baltimore, Pittsburgh, northern Ohio, Ft. Wayne, Ind., into Chicago; then by Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific across Illinois and Iowa to Omaha, Neb.; by Union Pacific across Nebraska, the northeas ern tip of Colorado through Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyoming, into Ogden, Utah; by Southern Pacific across the Great Salt Lake, northeastern Utah and Nevada in o Reno, still the greatest separa ion center of them all; and finally into California and Oakland where the train stopped alongside the dock at which was moored the Navy's Appalachian for the press, Bliss Ridge for military and naval observers, and Panamin for civilian scientist-observers.

On the train were 131 press correspondents, civilian observers and military and naval experts. In addition to the United States these nations were represented aboard: Great Britain, France, Mexico, Holland, Russia, Australia, Netherlands, China, Brazil and Egypt. China's Major-General Fisher Hou was perhaps the youngest of the foreign contingent.

The press will be divided; one group goes to Kwajalein, here headquarters for Operation Cross Roads. This group will be flown to Navy planes. Some press correspondents are already in the Pacific assigned to the flagship USS Mt. McKinley, upon which the commander of the whole operation, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, will have his headquarters. Another group, of which I am one, will proceed to Bikini by ship, arriving there June 29. We will be taken into the lagoon where the target ships are anchored; we will inspect some of them, then we will go alongside the Mt. McKinley, Blue Ridge and Panamint some 13 miles from the anchoring area from which will witness the explosion of the fourth atom bomb ever to be dropped in world his ory. No. 1, a test bomb, was dropped in July, 1945, Alamordo, New Mexico; No. 2 was dropped on Hiroshima in August, 1945 and No. 3 on Negasaki the same month.

Among a field of scientists, science writers and editors, and officials government observers I am one of a few innocent spectators and reporters.

Our special train has already had engine trouble twice; once near Al oona, Pa., that delayed us two hours, and near Rawlins, Wyoming, where one of the biggest and most powerful of Union Pacific engines broke a drive arm. But we hit Oakland virtually on time.

There are no women and children aboard; it is truly a "male" train. Appetites are amazingly good; fellowship is superb. Just west of Pi tsburgh one wide-eyed stranger dashed into the diner and asked:

"Where is this train headed for?"

"Honolulu," answered some ambitious scribe.

"Good grief," (these are not the exact words), the frenzied passenger shouted. "I want to get to Rochester."

In some inexplicable fashion the man had boarded the Crossroads Special at Pittsburgh. He was dropped at he next stop and entrancement more carefully guarded the rest of the trip.

Virginians aboard include Dr. John H. Yoe, professor of chemistry at the University of Virginia, whose opinions are much sought; W. T. Blank, Pullman conductor, a native of Clifton Forge, but now of Baltimore, who made the eastwest trip on the special; P. B. Young, Jr., Norfolk Journal and Guide and representative of the Negro Press of the United States, who will be stationed at Kwajalein; Col. A. W. Metts, of Arlington, who is making the trip as official observer for the Chemical Warfare Service; Don Morris, representative of the Philadelphia Record, whose wife is the former Miss Gladys Duff of Charlottesville; and George For Milton, representative of the Buffalo Evening News, who was graduated from the University of Virginia in 1916.

Joolery Foolery

Long time no see this feature in the Gay Gadgets column. That's because you've gone conservative with sterling silver and your gadgets aren't as giddy as they used to be. But, trust us to find one or two new trinket tricks. After all, with more than 2,000 Hi-Style Scouts sleuthing for us, we're not likely to come out empty-handed.

Magnetic Personality — Easier than reading up on the subject is wearing a little magnet as a lapel ornament. You tie a ribbon bow on it; then pin it to jacket or sweater. If you have to fight the boys off, you'll know it really works.

Fish Story — A long time ago we reported that you were raiding dad's fishing tackle box and wearing fish flies as lapel lure. Well, now they're mounting fish flies on sterling silver hooks and pins and selling them over the Gadgeteria counter. Literally Date Bait.

Gimmick From Grandpa—People in the radio business call any unusual trick or gag a "gimmick." That's what we call your new fad for wearing Grandpa's watch chain on your suit jackets. You loop it across the front and become one of the Chain Gang.

Starlight, Starbright—Here's an easy trick for your aluminum cuff bracelets or silver barrettes. Just stick colored paper stars all over them and they'll look brand new.

Bangle Belts—The newest way to wear those bangle bracelets is over your belts. Ditto for your charm bracelets. What would you ever do without us?

Artificial Breeding Shows Advancement

Expert Knowledge Is Vital Part of Plans

By W. J. Dryden

Results obtained by artificial breeding shows great possibilities of not only increasing returns from dairy cows but other farm animals, including sheep and poultry.

Artificial insemination or breeding requires expert knowledge. Those who undertake this work must be familiar with the anatomy and physiology of the reproductive organs and have a sound understanding of correct sanitary precautions.

Artificial insemination creates demand for highest quality bulls, such as this Holstein.

Preparation of artificial vagina, care and collection of semen, its dilution and storage as well as the equipment required, places artificial insemination out of reach of the individual in nearly all cases. It is because of these factors non-profit artificial breeding associations have been established in most states to carry on the work.

The quality of stock has been materially increased where artificial insemination has been practiced, and at a considerable reduction to the individual farmer. In many cases he is able to secure the services of a high quality bull that would not be possible, or financially feasible by using direct methods.

STRENGTHENING BONDS OF FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:14-20; 6:6, 20, 21.

MEMORY SELECTION—A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another.—John 13:34.

Fellowship is a word that comes to its full meaning when the relationship between the saved and believers, which unites them into just such a relationship one another.

The Lord seeks his people and gives himself in friendship to them, even to the full devotion of love. Shall we do less for one another?

Our lesson presents four ways in which Christ fellowshiped with his disciples.

I. The Fellowship of the Table (Luke 22:14-18).

It was late on Thursday, April 6, A.D. 30, when we call Holy Week, that Jesus and his disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had been sent to make preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22:8-13).

This feast had (since Egypt's sad and awful night of Israel's deliverance out of Egypt's bondage) looked forward to the Christ and the cross as the fulfillment of the promise of redemption by the shedding of blood.

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover, for he now observed with his disciples for it was the last celebration that feast recognized by God. For that it had foreshadowed of the reality and substance and hope was fulfilled in him who now sat at the table. Jesus moved forward with resolution to pose to this day when his work on earth was to be accomplished and he was to become the Christian's Passover lamb (I Cor. 5:7).

The Passover was a solemn occasion of remembrance of God's deliverance from the bondage of Egypt, but it was now to be replaced by a new feast of remembrance and of personal significance. They were to remember Christ.

II. The Fellowship of the Table (Luke 22:19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been offered, Jesus established the Christian ordinance of remembrance, which is also called communion, or the Lord's Supper.

His words are significant, for as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table we are to remember and to show forth his love, calling his death for them, and also find joy as they remember that he is to come again. They are to be joyful to the world that they have and cherish these truths.

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table, then, speaks of our allegiance and devotion of our loyalty to our Lord, our devotion to his service. Also why the Christian church speaks of communion as a sacrament, for the word "sacrament" from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Fellowship of the Word (John 17:6-8).

John gives us a blessed picture of the fellowship of Jesus with his disciples in the upper room when he takes us into what is called "the Holy of Holies" of Scripture, our Lord's intercessory prayer. Here "the High Priest of our profession" (Heb. 3:1) brings us into the very presence of God.

At the very beginning of this prayer (vs. 6) he speaks of the words that the Father had given him and which he had given to them.

This little company of disciples had been given to Christ, drawn out of the evil world and set apart for God's work. But note that the thing which distinguished them in the eyes of the Lord was that they had kept" the word of God. That is, they had received the living Word of Christ, as the one whom the Father had sent.

That kind of fellowship which the Lord makes a man strong and powerful. Life and testimony are fruitful because they exalt Christ.

IV. The Fellowship of Prayer (John 17:20, 21).

Christ prayed for his disciples, not only those immediately present, but all who should thereafter believe on him through the messages since that day because of their witness.

That puts each one of us who is a true disciple, right now in the midst of the greatest prayer fellowship of all time. He, the eternal and omnipotent one, prays for us. How we should we be weak and failing in our testimony or have failures in our life? Can it be that we have failed to count on his prayer for us? Can it be that we have failed to count on his prayer for us? Can it be that we have tried to walk in our own strength?

The prayer for unity (vs. 21) does not speak of an outward unity of religious bodies such as is highly favored and promoted in our day. Certainly where such unity can be attained without the sacrifice of principle or compromise of sound doctrine it is desirable. But the unity that of the heart.

Love Wins Over In-Laws, Bride Quits Tub Hideout

PITTSBURGH. — Love triumphed recently for George Carchidi, 22, and his bride, Josephine, 17, after the girl's parents permitted their daughter to leave their home and join her husband.

Fortified by love letters he said his wife had to write in her bathtub, in order to avoid parental censorship, Carchidi brought habeas corpus proceedings to make Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trujillo free their daughter.

Carchidi said his in-laws ejected him and kept their daughter in the house after they learned the couple had been married secretly some months ago.

In Judge James L. O'Toole's court, shortly before a hearing was to be held on the case, the jurist talked to all parties. The Trujillos told him that Josephine was "the baby of the family" and they hated to lose her, but agreed with Judge O'Toole that the young couple should be allowed to be together.

Kidnap Victim Is Taken Along on Robbery Jaunt

CHICAGO.—Edward Radloff, 38, of 4246 Kenmore avenue, was kidnaped in his own car and taken along on a robbery, Town Hall police learned.

Radloff told police that three men, one of them armed, forced him into the rear of his car after binding his hands with baling wire.

They drove him around for 15 minutes, Radloff said, making one stop before they abandoned him and the car at Lake Shore drive and Hawthorne place. He freed himself and reported to the police.

Police solved the mystery of the one stop when Thomas O'Brien, a grocery store owner at 1042 Buena avenue, reported he was robbed of $111 by two men, one armed, who escaped in a waiting automobile.

O'Brien's description of the men tallied with that given by Radloff.

"Okay, it's a deal," replied Gaber as he wrote out a check.

Postal Loot Is Uncovered by Mine Detector

$153,150 Out of Large Sum Stolen by Employee in 1944, Is Found.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — In the back yard of a dead postal employee a mine detecting device that saved untold lives during the war, located $153,.50 nine feet underground, bringing to light the bulk of $180,000—largest amount of currency ever stolen from the postal service, the Associated Press reports.

The thief had buried the money in two glass jars and two tin cans, these concealed in two lengths of stovepipe. it was the metal in the stovepipe and the tin cans that set off the mine detector and led to the find.

The money—missing since May 16, 1944—was dug up by the postal inspectors between a chicken coop and the rooming house of Mrs. Joseph D. Marshall, 34, widow of the man who confessed the theft just before he died August 10, 1944, after an appendicitis operation.

Wife Is Cleared.

Postal authorities said Mrs. Marshall, who was acquitted by a federal jury in 1945 of charges of conspiracy and of secreting and carrying away the money, was not implicated and that she had given permission for a search of the grounds. The investigation was continuing, they said, in an effort to determine where the remaining $17,000 might be hidden. Authorities said Marshall, 42, spent nearly $10,000 for jewlry. The jewelry was recovered and is being held under court order.

The Marshall yard had been searched once because authorities were certain Marshall did not have time between the robbery and his arrest 10 days later to secrete the loot far from home. On the first search, no detecting device was used and holes dug did not go nine feet deep.

Marshall was registry clerk in the post office here and on the night of May 16 a federal reserve registered shipment came in consigned to a Miami bank. The package which arrived at the bank the next day was a dummy. Sometime between those two periods, the 21x9x16 inch canvas bag containing the $180,000 had been taken from the post office.

It was Marshall's handwriting which led to his arrest. Postal authorities studied the penmanship on the dummy package and announced it tallied precisely with Marshall's handwriting and arrested him.

He was indicted but never brought to trial. He became ill while in jail and it was not until he knew he was going to die that he confessed the theft. He refused to say where the money was hidden.

Detector Finds Metal.

Postal authorities borrowed the mine detector from the army and the detector at once gave evidence that it was over metal. The cache was found not long after. The money, in the two glass jars and two tin cans, had been sealed in with paraffin. There were 2,000 $20 bills, 40 $1,000, and the rest in $10 bills. The currency was in good condition and was returned to Washington by special messenger.

The trio who located the cash said Marshall had started digging his hole from the chicken house, the size of a one-car garage, and had dug on a slant and under the surface of the yard. The entire top of the chicken house concealed his activities.

The post office inspectors service was the only group which conducted the investigation, which was carried on under supervision of Inspectors J. J. Doran of Washington and M. H. Ackerman of Richmond.
